

DEEPLY CONCERNED ABOUT RISING CARBON EMISSIONS AND RISING ELECTRICITY PRICES?

Going solar
addresses both
these concerns,
but where do you
start?

How will I know I'm getting the best system
for my needs?

How can I ensure I'm not being ripped off?

What are the current rebates? Is it worth it?

(Short answer - yes!)

Inner West Community Energy is here to help.

We're a not-for-profit
community group that's neither commercially nor politically aligned.

We offer free advice,
knowledge about solar technology and the solar
industry and we have a team
of accredited solar installers.

We have already helped over 360 households install solar
and start generating their own electricity using the power of the sun.

We would love to help you get a great quality solar system at a fair price.

Start saving the planet and saving on your bills!

Who are we?

IWCE was formed in 2017 with the goal of increasing the amount of rooftop solar in the Inner West.

As well as assisting individual households, we have also helped install solar on such community facilities as the Leichhardt Women's Community Health Centre, the Asylum Seekers Centre, the Aboriginal Medical Service in Redfern, and Guthrie House in Enmore through a combination of government grants and money from the group.

“We like the idea of free power! Not yet, but it will be and it's good to know that we're not burning coal to put the air con on and also nice to know that we're paying our own way.”

What people said

“I wanted someone who could explain the process, guide us through it and provide additional advice, without being conflicted by commissions and sales. That's what I was looking for and that's what I found with IWCE.”

Bridianne of Leichhardt

“You're like the encyclopaedia of solar to a novice walking in.”
